Land Values for City Are Claimed Lower This Year

Preliminary Report on Assessments Issued

Real estate valuations have been reduced by approximately $645,000 for the city of Torrance this year, the records of the assessor's office reveal. The figures, of course, are subject to the action of the board of equalization, and a slight alteration is possible.

Real estate valuations have been fixed at $1,042,905 this year, as compared with $1,688,320 in 1929. This includes both land and improvements. Land valuations alone showed a reduction of $489,385 under last year.

The total assessed valuation as fixed for Torrance this year is $24,594,825, the assessor's report states. In 1929 the total was $28,174,755. The increase is accounted for by the larger volume of assessments on stocks and bonds, personal property and solvent credits. Personal property is listed at $21,910, as against $7,909,120 last year. The total of stocks and bonds is $175,440 and of solvent credits $54,670.

Comparative Figures

The grand total assessed valuation of the entire county this year is $4,689,492,489, the assessor's rolls show, as compared with $4,522,927,094 in 1929, the increase being largely accounted for by the larger volume of assessments on stocks and bonds and solvent credits. Long Beach had a total valuation this year of $312,024,615; Santa Monica, $78,353,290; Signal Hill, $84,287,115; Compton, $11,327,380; Lynwood, $6,936,410, and Redondo Beach, total assessment, $9,050,165 and land valuation of $5,378,235.

Old Oil Rig Moved Here by E. L. Doheny

rick removed to his plant here where it will be installed as a prized souvenir of his career.

Mr. Canfield, Sr., at one time was a partner of Doheny while Charles O. Canfield, who then was a young boy, assisted his father and Doheny in their pioneering work.

It has been estimated that the first Doheny production between 10 and 15 barrels a day. In 38 years there are 13,870 days, based upon 365 days a year. This multiplied by 10 gives 138,700, the number of barrels of oil taken from the old well.

Pioneer "Drilling" And the Doheny-Canfield investment was only $50, the millionaire operator said last week when he and Charles O. Canfield met at the old well to recount the hardships they encountered in bringing their first well to life.

"This first well cost us only $50," Doheny said. "That compared with the cost of wells today is nothing. We now spend $100,000 or more to tap the pay."

Doheny and Canfield played a "hunch" in selecting the location for their first well.

"We started hole with pick and shovel. We got down eight feet, but we couldn't throw the dirt out by hand any longer. Then we rigged up a tripod derrick with a block overhead and a block at the base. We fastened one end to a bucket and the other end to a horse. I worked in the hole while Canfield at the top handled the dirt and his son led the horse."

Routed by Gas For 145 feet Doheny and Canfield doggedly carried on. At that level the gas became so strong that Doheny was unable to continue his work at the bottom of the shaft.

"We then scratched our heads," Doheny continued, "and decided to rig up a spring pole, using a bit and a sand bucket, and we drilled a small hole fifteen feet deeper."

Doheny and Canfield, leaping gleefully around their crude rig, realized they had tapped the pay, for their well came in as "a gusher of ten or fifteen barrels" a day.

Pipeline facilities were, of course, not to be had here then, and Doheny and Canfield hauled their product by horse to a pipe factory, where the crude was used to paint pipe.
